

YEASTED BREAD WITH GERMAN YEAST. For 3 quarten loaves allow 3½ lb. of flour and 1 oz. of German yeast. Into a basin put a teaspoonful of sugar, add the yeast, and cream the two together with a wooden spoon until you get them liquid, then add a pinch of salt and a couple of drops of water. Sift the flour into a large basin, make a good hollow or well in the middle, and into this strain the yeast and water mixture, work in a little flour from the sides, and set it down in a warm place to rise. In 15 minutes the mound of dough should be covered with bubbles; take it up then, and work all the flour in with your hand. When you have got it smooth, cover it up, and again set it in a warm place to rise for 2 hours. Then take it up and knead it in a basin, and work it through it a teaspoonful of salt while kneading the bread for a quarter of an hour. The dough should now be divided into two parts, making them into smooth balls without any cracks. If you wish to bake 3 loaves, divide the dough into three, put in the tin at the top over, and set them to rise in a warm place for half an hour. Should you prefer cottage loaves, divide each of the two balls again into two pieces—ones being a little larger than the other—make each into a ball, put the small piece on the larger, and press down your forefinger into the middle of the top piece. The bread is now ready for baking. Put it in the oven for a quarter of an hour, then remove it, and pour a little of the oil over for a hour and a half, and, when baked, is well to set it on its side to cool.

On Thursday last the South London Club commenced the competition for championship in jewelry, and attendant prizes, and at the close of the day the result was watched with great interest. The competitors were 630 and 900 yards, 10 runners at 600 and 900 yards were made by the following:-

Butler, who prosecuted, said the prisoner, watching proscutrix in court, was "very nervous." The Capital and Counties Bank, London, advised that it had received, dilly, saw her cash a cheque for £45, and receive 4 210 notes of £5, which she placed in her purse. She also carried £100 in gold, already obtained £3 in gold. Her bank to Messrs. Redfern's premises, New Bond-st., the prisoner followed her to the bank, where she entered the proscutrix, and whilst she was trying to open the door, she was seized by him he picked up her purse lying on the floor and walked off. Later on he was arrested at his home.

A Post Office Savings Bank account in the name of the prisoner, and some of the stolen notes—H.M. Prison, Wandsworth, advised that the prisoner, Arrow, as well as the Russian-Polish thieves, were committing depredations in this country since their escape from Russia, and a sentence of 8 months' hard labour was pronounced on them.

THE TRAIN MYSTERY.

SENSATIONAL DISCLOSURES AT THE INQUEST.

HUSBAND AND LOVER.

Mr. L. Smeeth, deputy-coroner, resumed, at 11.15, the inquest on the body of Matilda Bryan, aged 29.

The mutilated remains of deceased were found on the L. and N.W. Ry., a mile and a half from Tring, on the night of the 1st inst. Mr. G. J. Phillips, appeared for the husband, Mr. G. F. Hocking for the director of the Rly. Co., Mr. J. S. Hepworth for the executor of deceased, and Mr. T. R. F. Coates for Mr. W. Harold Ashton, son of Mr. Ashton, deceased.

Mr. Smeeth said that he was married 17 years, and he was over 40. In 1893 there was some trouble between them, for which he was to blame. She had never threatened or attempted to commit suicide. His wife left him for only a short time. Since then they had lived upon the best of terms.

Coroner: Do you know Mr. William Harold Ashton? Witness: I am sorry to say I do. He was unfortunate, a visitor to my house about 12 months ago last Christmas. A friendship sprang up between us. In the course of time Mr. Ashton and my wife became attached to one another. It was a year ago when I noticed that Mr. Ashton was a reporter in Northampton, and about that time left. I do not know whether he went away because of his attachment to my wife; I understood it to be better his position. Shortly after he left I became aware of his attachment to her.

CLAPHAM MYSTERY.

INQUEST ON THE SHOT CLEGGMAN.

AN OPEN VERDICT.

The inquest on the body of Frederick Price, deceased, was held at St. Paul's Church, Clapham, on Sunday morning.

The deceased was a well-known and popular man, and his death was a great loss to the community.

The inquest was held in the presence of a large number of witnesses, including the deceased's family and friends.

The coroner, Mr. Smeeth, presided over the proceedings, and the jury returned a verdict of "open verdict."

The jury was unable to reach a unanimous verdict on the cause of death, and the case will be referred to the grand jury.

The deceased's family expressed their deep grief at the loss of their loved one, and thanked the jury for their services.

The inquest was adjourned until the next day, when the jury will return their verdict.

The deceased's body was buried in the Clapham cemetery on Sunday afternoon.

LADY AND DOCTOR.

CONVICTED OF MURDER WITH A SUICIDE ATTEMPT.

At West London, Mr. Rose proceeded finally with the numerous charges of fraud, perjury, and other crimes against the Rev. Mr. Turner, and the woman Mrs. Macdonald, who was known as the Lady Macdonald.

The charges were read out in detail, and the jury heard evidence from several witnesses.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty on all counts, and the court sentenced the defendants to life imprisonment.

The case had caused a great deal of public interest, and the trial was well-attended.

The defendants' legal team had made a valiant effort to secure an acquittal, but the evidence was too strong.

The court adjourned until the next day, when the sentencing will be carried out.

The Lady Macdonald and Mr. Turner will be kept in separate cells.

The case is expected to be a landmark in the history of the legal system.

The court will hear further evidence on the sentencing of the defendants.

THE

CACAO THEOBROMA
(THE COCOA TREE).
ITS ROMANTIC, HISTORICAL

ASSOCIATIONS.

ONE of the most romantic episodes in the history of Spain is that of the conquest of the Aztec Kingdom of Mexico, by Hernando Cortes, early in the sixteenth century. With but a comparatively handful of warrior Spaniards, and having only a score of native horses for the cavalry, Cortes landed at Vera Cruz, on the Gulf of Mexico, April 18th, 1519.

Previously unknown to Europeans, the Spaniards found Chocolate, from which we have the modern name of Chocolate, to be one of the national beverages of the Aztec nation.

THE EMPEROR MONTEZUMA

drank no other beverage than Chocolate, and was exceedingly fond of it. Fifty jars were daily prepared for his own daily consumption and that of his wives. Two thousand more were allowed for the household.

Cacao beans were also used as currency or money. "Blessed money," exclaims Peter Martyr, "which exempts its possessor from avarice, since it cannot be long hoarded nor hidden under ground."

The tax gatherers of the Aztecs took rigid care to exclude all inferior Cacao beans from the royal tribute, that the Emperor and lords of Mexico might have only the best. Messrs. Bouvetree and Co., of York, excise, four centuries later, an equal care in selection of the best Cacao beans only, from which to prepare THE FINEST CHOCOLATE.

from which to prepare BOWEN'S BLOOD
COCA.

As York, therefore, Messrs. Rowntree have paid special attention to the production of a really refreshing and nourishing Cocoa, in which

- (a) The enjoyable aromatic principle and rich colour of the beans are fully developed.
- (b) The invigorating yet soothing Theobromine of the beans is retained unimpaired, if not actually enhanced, by the care and skill employed.
- (c) The Cocoa itself is presented in its most nourishing and appetising form.

ROWNTREE'S

makes, indeed, a most refreshing and exhilarating beverage. This is largely owing to the fact that it contains in every hundred parts no less than 75 parts of Theobromine, whereas other Cocos, less skillfully and scientifically treated and prepared from inferior Cocoa beans, the proportion of Theobromine is very much less, and such Cocos are therefore, of a necessity, much less refreshing and invigorating.

Theobromine is a very near relative to the Theine of Tea and the Caffeine of Coffee. It is owing to the exceptional proportion of Theobromine contained in BOWNTREE'S ELECT COCOA that the most soothing effects experienced after its use may be attributed, and why, also, BOWNTREE'S ELECT COCOA braces up the nervous system and clears the brain, without engendering intense mental activity.

Economy is everything in these days of competition, and the Elect Cocoa is not only good, but it is as more economical than either tea or coffee. Indeed, you cannot tell your household to use more more economical and nourishing beverage than

The Eldest Cocoa. Unlike most other Cocos, you must only use half a teaspoonful for a breakfast cup. Remember, half a teaspoonful, not a full or heaped-up spoonful.

This is all that is required to make a breakfast cup of really invigorating and refreshing Cocoa distinguished by the nutritious properties, by the delicacy of aroma, and by its delicious flavour.

THE ILLUSTRATED 1908
CALENDAR.
